

Shane Smith & The Saints Soar to New Heights During Live at 35

Shane Smith & The Saints had our heads in the clouds during their recent Live at 35 inflight concert.

On a Phoenix-bound flight, the country music band surprised Customers with two songs in-air: “All I See Is You” from their 2015 album, “Geronimo,” and “It’s Been A While” from their new album, “Norther,” which debuted March 1. Customers onboard enjoyed the show, and some even sang along!

Shane Smith & The Saints have three independent albums and over a thousand live performances under their belt, but only one sky-high performance at 35,000 feet. In addition to selling out a Boeing 737, the band sold out Red Rocks Amphitheater and Nashville's Ryman Auditorium.

Southwest has supported musicians through Live at 35 for over a decade. Since 2011, customers have enjoyed inflight performances from artists across the U.S., such as Barenaked Ladies, Imagine Dragons, and now Shane Smith & The Saints.

Visit Southwest.fm to learn more about these rockin' performances and to watch previous Live at 35 performances!