Shoulder Season is Southwest's Peak Season in San Diego

Southwest Airlines® is continuing to increase its footprint in San Diego with an all-time high of 139 scheduled departures on peak days during August and September 2026. With its continued Customer Experience enhancements both in the air and at SAN's Terminal 1, the airline is connecting its 44th destination to America's Finest City with once-daily service to and from Santa Barbara, California, scheduled to begin Aug. 4, 2026.

Additionally, Southwest® is doubling its daily roundtrip flights between San Diego and Portland, Salt Lake City, and Seattle. The growth on those daily routes is slated to launch Aug. 4, 2026.

Even Greater in Greater LA

Two new connections between California and Hawaii are out for sale with peak-day service between Burbank, California, and Honolulu slated to begin Aug. 4, 2026. The carrier is also adding daily service between Ontario, California, and Honolulu scheduled to begin June 4, 2026.

Southwest, the largest carrier at Long Beach Airport¹, is linking Long Beach with Portland and Seattle with a scheduled launch Aug. 4, 2026. The new service will operate six days per week and marks Southwest's return to service between the Greater Los Angeles area and these Pacific Northwest destinations.

Southwest's schedule – with more than 300 days of flights out for sale – is available for booking through Sept. 30, 2026. The carrier recently debuted its redesigned cabin experience, among other Customer Experience enhancements, including assigned and premium seating, free Wi-Fi for all Rapid Rewards® Members, thanks to T-Mobile®, and adding in-seat power to all its Boeing 737-8 aircraft as the airline works toward in-seat power across its full fleet.
