

Enter to Win a Vacation That's Out of This World

For the first time ever, you can experience your very own Star Wars™ adventure. At Star Wars: Galaxy's Edge, Disney's new Star Wars–themed land, you can custom-make a lightsaber,* build a droid, and fly the galaxy's most legendary ship, the Millennium Falcon.

While your Southwest flight coordinates may not be set for the edge of the galaxy, you do have the opportunity to live your own Star Wars story. Southwest is offering you the chance to win a trip for four to Star Wars: Galaxy's Edge at both Disneyland® Resort in Anaheim, California, and Walt Disney World® Resort in Orlando, Florida. Visit Southwest.com/TakeFlight for official rules and to enter.

Both locations of Star Wars: Galaxy's Edge provide visitors with an immersive experience unlike any other. You'll be transported to the planet Batuu, where you can wander the Black Spire Outpost and encounter its notorious cast of characters, from traders to adventurers to smugglers. Never flown a starship before? No problem. An interactive attraction, Millennium Falcon: Smugglers Run welcomes participants of all skill levels. You'll embark on a smuggling mission from the Millennium Falcon's cockpit, where you'll fly the ship and manage its controls. Whether you choose to serve as a pilot, engineer, or gunner, each crew member plays an important role.

Southwest Airlines is eager to share this new world with you. While onboard WiFi-enabled flights, you can catch a glimpse of this otherworldly destination by tuning in to the Disney Parks TV Series Channel on the Inflight Entertainment Portal, which is accessible via Southwestwifi.com on your mobile device or laptop.

*Reservations may be required for these experiences. Please check before arrival. Parks, attractions, and offerings are subject to availability, restrictions, and change or cancellation without notice.
